

AVERAGE RETIREMENT AGE ESTIMATES BY DETAILED OCCUPATION
IN THE AUSTRALIAN LABOUR MARKET
Job Markets Australia

The Job Markets Australia online database, from the 2019-2020 issue onwards, includes the first published estimates of average retirement age for more than 1,000 ANZSCO occupation in the Australian labour market. There are over 940 ANZSCO occupations which have their own average retirement age. (They are listed alphabetically on pages 2 to 21.) Another 75 ANZSCO occupations are too small, or are new specialisations with few older workers, or have unusual features (such as delayed retirement in the Farmers group). For that second category (listed on page 21), Job Markets Australia provides the average retirement age for each occupation's relevant unit or minor group. That figure is for a group of similarly skilled occupations in a specific workstream or industry. Take Goat Farmers, for example. They are a small, quite recent specialisation. Their database entry shows the average retirement age for the Farmers and Farm Managers minor group (the figure is 65.9 years, by the way). Poultry Farmers, however, have their own reliable estimate for average retirement age because of their bigger employment base. Incidentally, it is 61.1 years.

The Job Markets Australia methodology for determining average retirement age by occupation and occupational group uses a form of static estimation. It compares the number employed (whether full-time or part-time) in an occupation or group in consecutive five-year age-groups, beginning with the 50 to 54 age-group and continuing to the 70 to 74 age-group, whose comparator is the 75 plus age-group. Net falls are deemed net withdrawals from employment and thus into retirement from the specific occupation or group. Calculation of the average retirement age draws on single-year-of-age statistics. The statistical source is the Australian Bureau of Statistics' 2016 Population Census.

The Bureau's most recent published Retirement and Retirement Intentions survey was conducted in 2018 and 2019 [go to www.abs.gov.au and type "6238.0" in the homepage's search box]. While providing the average retirement ages for various categories, it does not produce them for specific occupations, minor groups or unit groups. The Bureau's average retirement age is lower than the Job Markets Australia figure for seven of the eight occupational major groups, the exception being the Managers major group, and that outcome was due to the atypical labour force participation of so many working as Farmers and Farm Managers. The results for the other major groups can be mainly attributed to the Bureau's methodology that included earlier withdrawals (from 45 years of age) and respondents entering retirement in the preceding 20 years.

The average retirement age for the overall Australian workforce has been rising for more than a decade: 53.3 in 2010-2011, 54.4 in 2014-2015 and 55.4 in 2018-2019. These figures apply to those who ceased work after the age of 45 and within the previous 20 years. In the same survey years, the Bureau's average retirement age for those who ceased work after the age of 45 and within the previous five years was 61.5 in 2012-2013, 61.5 in 2014-2015 and 62.9 in 2016-2017, though the last might be overstated owing, for example, to the greater frequency in recent years of retired persons returning for short periods of work (such as Exam Markers, Wool Classers or Academic Researchers).

For further information about calculation of average age of retirement using static estimation, refer to Scherer, P. (2002), "Age of Withdrawal from the Labour Force in OECD Countries", OECD Labour Market and Social Policy Occasional Papers, No. 49, OECD Publishing, Paris.
