

Job Markets Australia's Regional and Local Labour Markets with Jobs by Occupation and by States and Territories – tables downloaded from www.jobmarkets.com.au –

The Job Markets Australia database on www.jobmarkets.com.au has adopted in full the Australian Standard Geographic Classification when presenting regional and local job counts for ANZSCO occupations. The Classification, developed and maintained by the Australian Bureau of Statistics, is the national statistical standard for geographic locations within State and Territories, eclipsing local government areas, postcodes and the like, but not the boundaries for representative governments and related bodies.

To assist database users the abbreviations SA4, SA3 and SA2 are included with geographic names, SA standing for Statistical Area. In the database there are 88 SA4 regions (including the ACT), 336 SA3 sub-regions and 2,450 SA2 localities. The regional and local job counts for 1,063 ANZSCO occupations are from the 2021 Population Census. All regions, sub-regions and localities are listed in the following pages.

When someone generates inclusions for a report on www.jobmarkets.com.au, Job Markets Australia, they can nominate from the Extra Content section one or more regions, sub-regions, or localities. The nomination must be linear, as the following examples illustrate:

State or Territory > Capital City or Rest of State > one or more SA4 regions

State or Territory > Capital City or Rest of State > one SA4 region > one or more SA3 sub-regions

State or Territory > Capital City or Rest of State > one SA4 region > one SA3 sub-region > one or more SA2 localities

Any other geographic combination will cause the online database to produce a report without any regional or local job counts for the occupation/s of interest.

Job Markets Australia reports always provide job numbers for Australia, each State and Territory, and every capital city. They are derived from the latest Labour Force statistics. These job numbers are part of every Job Markets Australia report.

The Bureau has applied perturbation to the Census counts, to protect the confidentiality of Census responses. This technique introduces minor random errors, and is most noticeable in what are called small cell counts. For instance, if there is only one or two Actuaries in a particular locality then that count of one would be suppressed; similarly, if you wanted to know how many Accountants were in this or that small town, the figure would be randomised. Users of Job Markets Australia need to keep this in mind when seeking to know how many accessible jobs are in a selected labour market.

Adoption of the Statistical Area classification means that future issues of the database will be well-placed to incorporate statistical and administrative series showing other labour market and economic variables that are classified to Statistical Areas.
